GARDENING FOR SEPTEMBER

Prune rambling and climbing roses, cutting out any dead or diseased wood, tying in new growths and removing the same of the older stems to ground level. Tying stems in horizontally will encourage the production of flowering side shoots for next year.

Cut back hardy geraniums lightly after they have finished flowering they will often reward you with a second flowering in the autumn!

Now is the time to sow grass seed between September and mid-October, this way it will have the chance to germinate and establish before winter kicks in. However, if you are laying turf delay doing so until the back end of October or mid-November.

Prune Hydrangeas, Mop heads and lacecaps after the flowers have gone over. Just remove the heads directly below them. Do not get too excited and cut back too much or you will cut out developing flower heads for next year. You can however cut back about one third of the older stems down to the ground to encourage new stems to grow.

Plant Daffodil bulbs in rough grass. If you plant them in borders, mark where you have put them so you don't accidentally dig them up!

Many hardy, evergreen herbs will root readily from cuttings taken from this month. Select shoots 6 to 8 inches long cut close beneath a joint, and place in freely drained compost or a compost/sand mix. Experiment with rosemary, lavender, sage and thyme.

Finally, give fast growing privet and Lonicera nitida hedges their final cut of the season.
